

Dear Jose,

The DACA resolution will no doubt come in 2018, but then what about the other 11 million unauthorized immigrants?

Read on our website how, with a little creativity in D.C., these immigrants and their employers can be the drivers in reforming immigration. The Immigrant Tax Inquiry Group (ITIG) designed an effective model and a way both parties will be accountable, by each contributing just a nickel for every dollar of wages the immigrants earn. The results will be 1.7 million new American jobs and $210 generated over 10 years. These new funds will go a long way in easing health care, and educational and security needs related to illegal immigration throughout the country.

Grass roots sponsorship is important and we are attempting to amass this support for our viable, compassionate, non-partisan program for immigration reform.

Please contact me with any questions and to have a discussion about this crucial issue.

All the Best,

Mark Jason, Director of ITIG (Immigrant Tax Inquiry Group) is a former Special Agent for the Internal Revenue Service. He served as a budget analyst for the California State University System, and as a consultant for the Mexican government. Over the past several years, Mark developed a 100-acre farm near Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, which produces more than 350 tons of honeydew melons annually for the United States. He did this to create local jobs and teach modern farming techniques to this area of need. His education, his diverse experience in accounting, economics and farm management, and his years of cross-border work have led him to focus on immigration reform in America. His third way immigration project, developed by a 'think tank' team, was seven years in the making. He currently resides in Malibu, California.
