

Dear Mr. President,

If you want Mexicans to pay for the wall, you just need to ask the right people to pay for it—it's that simple. It's really not the Mexican government's responsibility—it's all those who cross the border illegally and those who hire them.

The Immigrant Tax Inquiry Group has developed a bipartisan, self-enforcing model for immigration reform by providing a methodology for workers and employers to each contribute 5 percent of immigrant labor earnings to help relieve the American taxpayers' immigrant expenses in many affected areas of the economy. The $210 billion this generates not only funds the wall and other needs across the country, but creates 1.7 new American jobs.

In exchange for their participation in the program, each eligible immigrant will be provided with a 10-year renewable Special Work Permit. The permit gives them the right to work here legally and access to healthcare and other benefits, including the right to go home and return safely.

Everybody wins. The immigrants can breathe a little easier and enjoy their lives while employers, whether they are home or factory owners, farmers, or hiring service workers, will be in compliance with the law and bring peace to their workers, improving their lives.

As a bonus, those roughly 1 million immigrants who are now gaming our ITIN (Immigrant Tax Identification Number) system for $6 billion a year will no longer be able to do it, saving taxpayers this money.

This plan protects American workers, including designating funds to retrain veterans, and eliminates the Visa Lottery, while advancing the safety and prosperity of all Americans and immigrants alike.

Most Respectfully,

Mark Jason, Director
Immigrant Tax Inquiry Group
www.immigranttaxgroup.org
mjason@immigranttaxgroup.org
310-456-2604

Mark Jason, Director of ITIG (Immigrant Tax Inquiry Group) is a former Special Agent for the Internal Revenue Service. He served as a budget analyst for the California State University System, and as a consultant for the Mexican government. Over the past several years, Mark developed a 100-acre farm near Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, which produces more than 350 tons of honeydew melons annually for the United States. He did this to create local jobs and teach modern farming techniques to this area of need. His education, his diverse experience in accounting, economics and farm management, and his years of cross-border work have led him to focus on immigration reform in America. His third way immigration project, developed by a 'think tank' team, was seven years in the making. He currently resides in Malibu, California.